HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONALS REQUIREMENT

Report of European Commission

The European Commission, in its Staff Working Document on an Action Plan for the EU Health Workforce, estimates that without further measures to meet these challenges, a potential shortfall of around 1 million health care workers will take place by 2020-21.

Healthcare Professionals	Estimated Shortage 20-21
Nurses	590000
Physicians	230000
Dentists, Pharmaceuticals, Physiotherapists	150000
Total	970000

MALTA :: BOTTLENECK PROBLEMS IN HEALTHCARE

A Study on Healthcare Workers Shortage

“The planned future expansion of the health care service by the government (e.g. the new Hospital Oncology Centre) is likely to absorb many of the new graduates in health. This is likely to increase the size of the bottleneck in the presence of a constant supply of professionals. Moreover, as is the case in many EU countries, Malta is confronted with increased demand for such services, due to an ageing population. Evidence suggests that the situation has been improving in recent years for doctors as the government adopted a series of measures to stop the outflow of talents and managed to attract foreign students. As far as nurses and midwives are concerned, the recent removal of the cap on the number of students admitted to the courses, a shortening of its duration and the improvement of contract conditions (including incentives for those who opt to return) only represent a first step. A “bridging” programme together with simplified recruiting practices are being used.”
