FMGE Passing Percentage

Kyrgyzstan doesn't have an impeccable FMGE passing result from all of its universities but they still offer much promise. Not many Indian students who studied MBBS from Kyrgyzstan and then came back have passed the FMGE exam. Osh State Medical University is one of the biggest universities of Kyrgyzstan and yet its passing percentage is not that great at all.

The passing percentage for the year 2012-14 was 11.90%. Between 2015-18 it was 4.39% when 933 students applied but only 41 passed and in 2019, the passing ratio was 10.65%. According to our analysis, any passing percentage that falls under 15-20% is not a good one. Which means that the university would not be favoured by Indian students in the future.

It is your life, make a wise decision. Being the top university, the passing percentage is low so you can still look for other universities in the country that offer MBBS if you really want to go to Kyrgyzstan.

Some of the universities with their adequate passing percentages are –

- Bukovinian State Medical University
- Vinnitsa National Medical University

Osh State University Ranking

As per the website 4icu.org, Osh State Medical University ranking is 9,424 and the country rank is 7 as on 11 June 2020. However, as stated by us on several occasions, these world rankings have no relevance while selecting the medical university for MBBS abroad.

*The rankings which Indian students should be checking is the MCI result and Osh Medical University MCI Screening Test passing percentage between 2015-18 was less than 5%.
